John -
It's been a pretty cool year knowing you except every time I see you
I get a sore arm but I guess it's o.k. Good Luck in the future
Best

To John
a good looking guy your one of the nicest guys I know Good Luck in the summer with the guys but you won't need it Good
Luck with your lady
Right
Dinda Cules

John,
Hi. Good Luck
I will miss you.
Keep playing violin
(you'll get as good as me)
Just a joke for Susan

John
you're cooler than you were in Hawaii. Which doesn't say too much.
No, I'm glad I had in some classes this year.

Eric
Furstenberg

John

You told me
all about High School life, (thats probally why
I didn't come to school for a week) but I like you and it anyway.

good luck
next year,
Mike Climo

John

Ya are real Cool
Guy but keep away from nerds like Matt keep cool and everything is all right Good Luck

Em Stumps

Hey John!!!
I'm signing your name
Ha! Ha! I'm well, Even You
Year Book! I'm cool, I'm cool, Out had days! I'm cool, I'm cool, Out thats got + no things to do with it!
He He I +s ALL How you look a fit!

John,

You are one crazy person and I'll never forget how foolish everyone use to act in
Mr. Carlson's class,
but not as foolish
as Bert use to act.

Hope to know you
for a long time.

See ya Around.

QUANTICO HIGH

Near the banks of the Potomac River
 Not too far from Gunston Hall,
 Home of Bill of Rights' author George Mason,
 And Mount Vernon, home of George Washington,
 Lies a brick building
 Trellised in spring by red roses,
 Surrounded by golden woods in fall,
 Occasionally iced by a winter storm.
 It is Quantico High School.

We enter this building each morning
 Chatting about last night's date,
 Anticipating a big game,
 Dreading a first period test,
 Looking for a friend.
 Such concerns seem remotely detached
 From any ideal spectrum of 1776

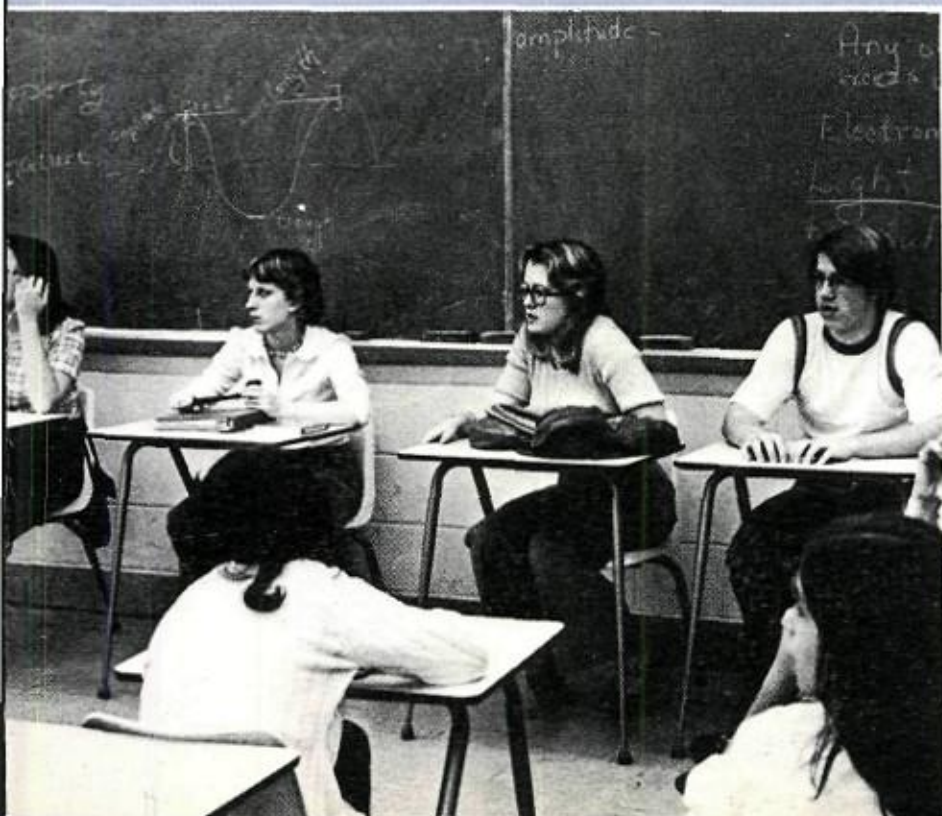

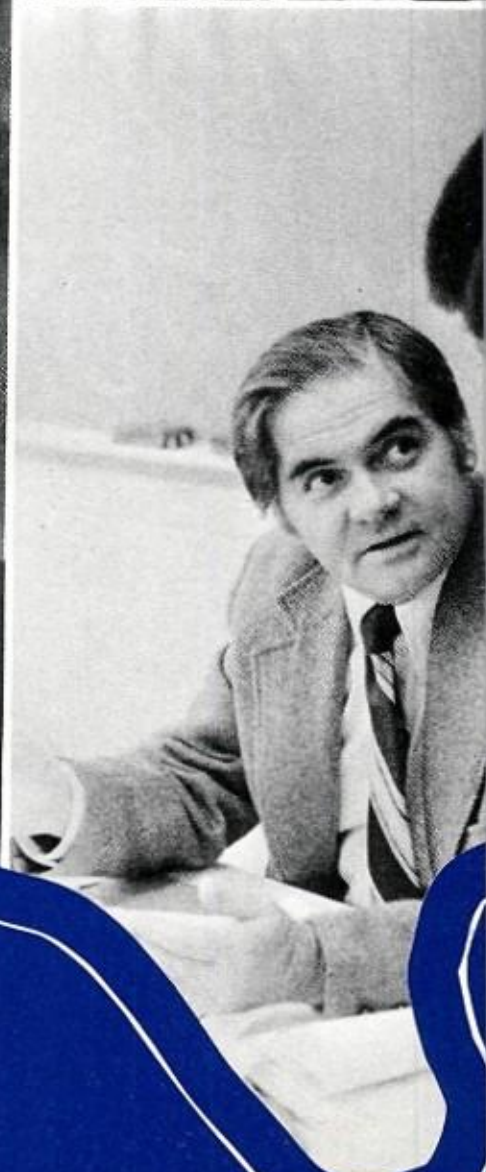

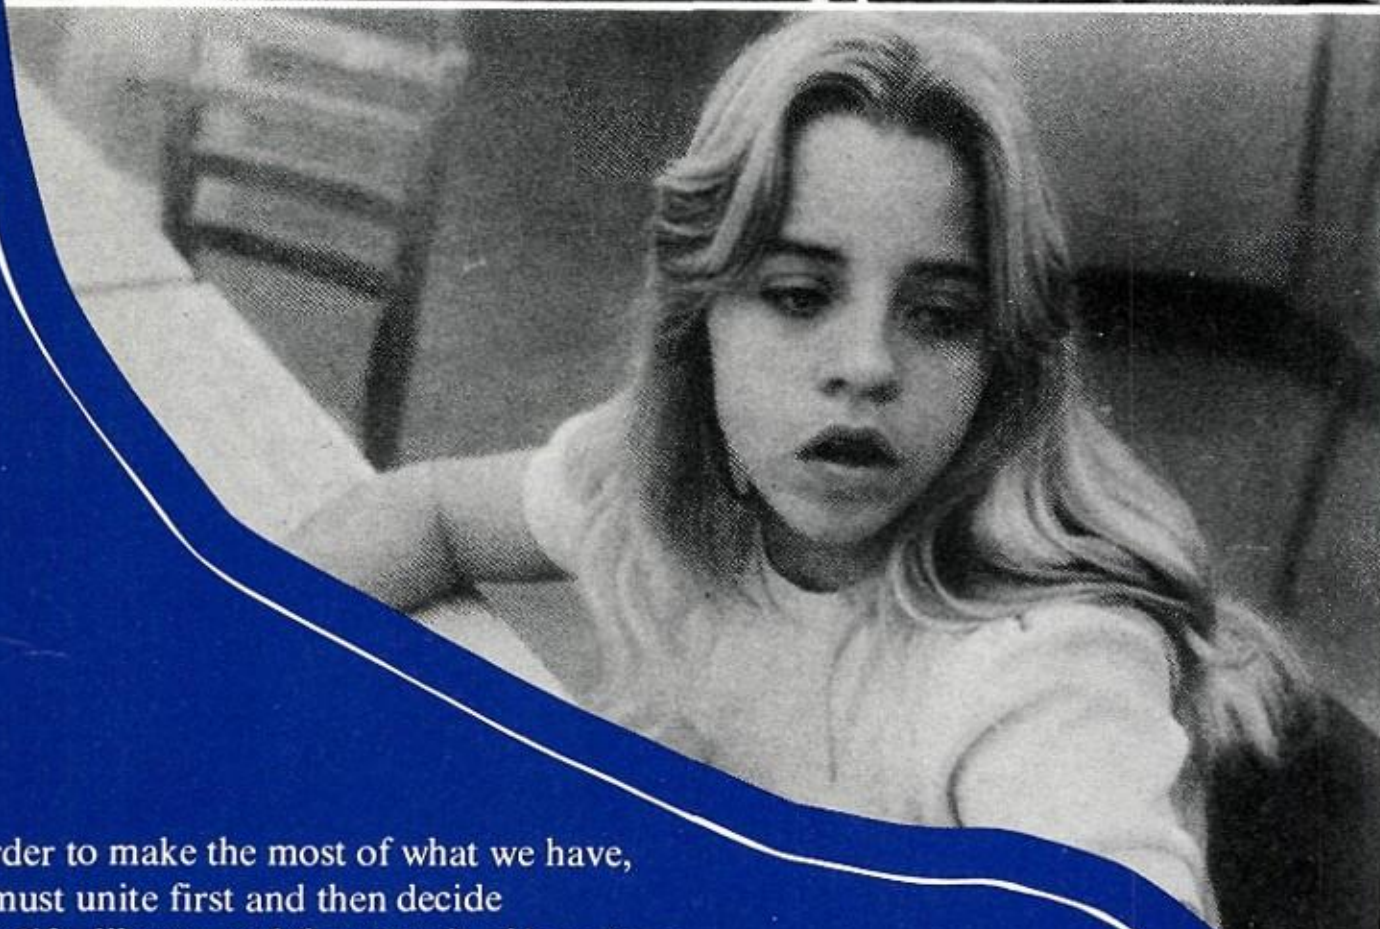

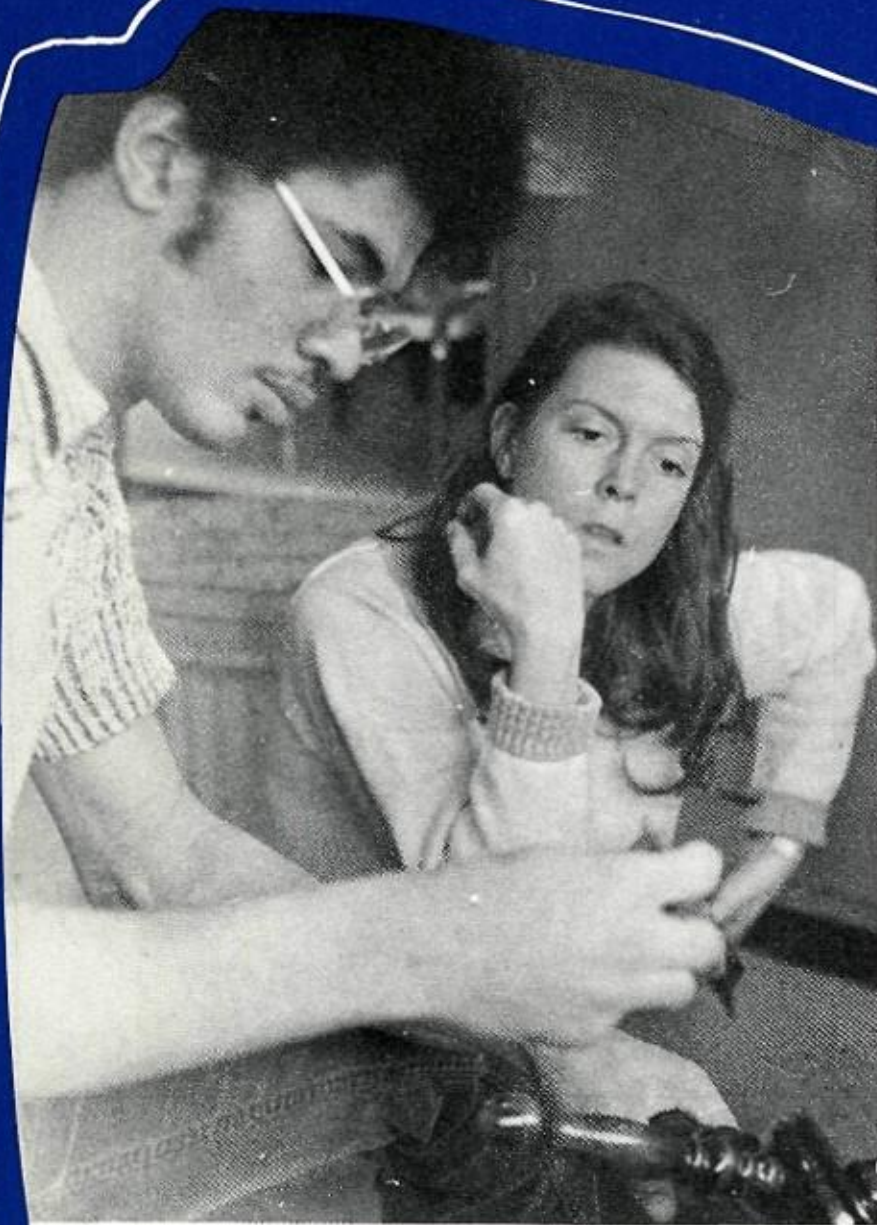

Seldom do we stop to think
 How a Thomas Jefferson
 Would applaud our free education;
 How a Benjamin Franklin
 Would marvel at our curiosity;
 How a Patrick Henry
 Would admire our independent spirit;
 How a representative government
 Was achieved in the United States.

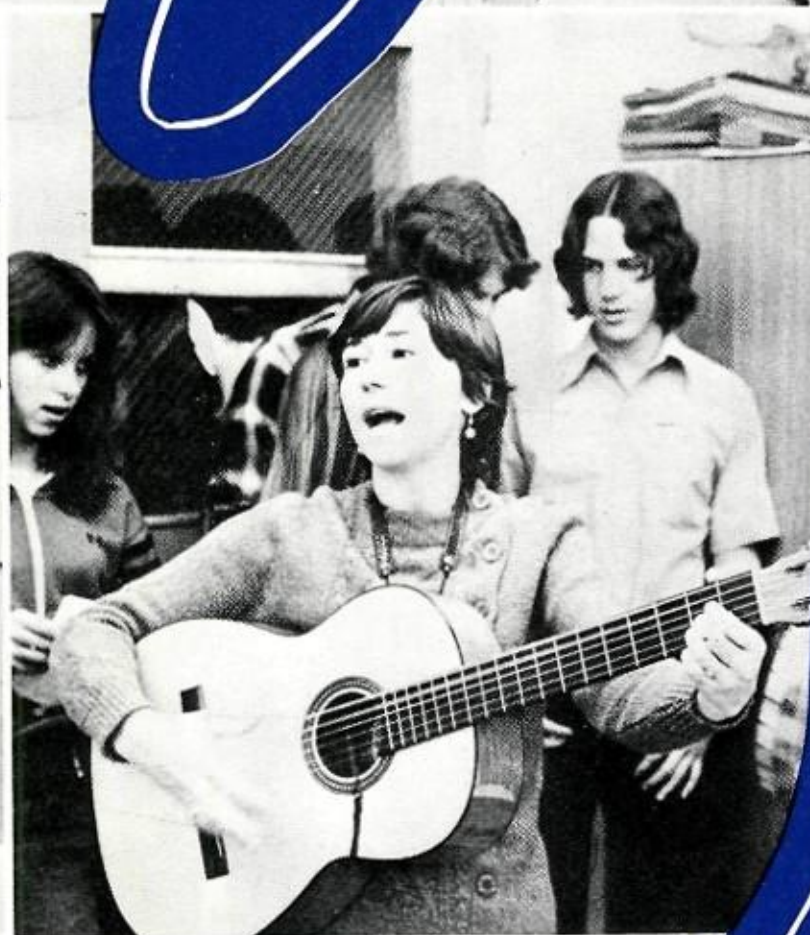

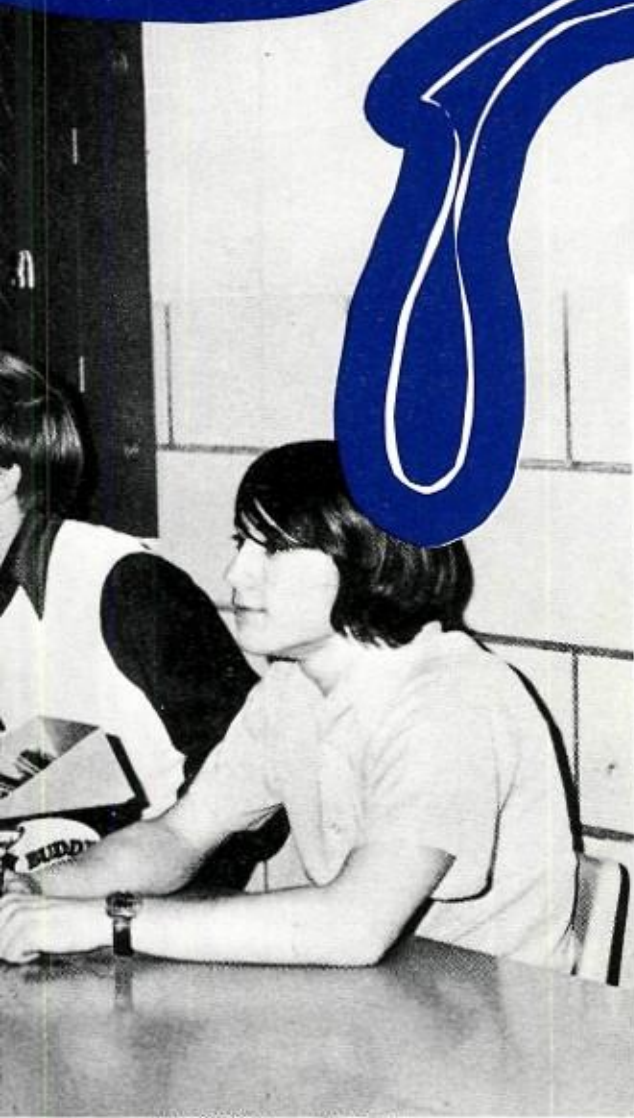

Our daily routines are taken for granted.
 We are comfortable in our environment,
 But never static.
 We are growing, learning, and trying
 To make the most of what we have.
 We are drawing from our past what is best
 And in turn hope to give the future our best.

In order to make the most of what we have,
We must unite first and then decide
What life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness
Will mean to us each year,
And when 'tis time to part for another year,
We can look back at what we have accomplished
With pride and document in our memories
Those days with satisfaction.

Mr. Rudolph Kalasky

There are many individuals at Quantico High School whose service is self-evident. This year it is time to honor three more. To you —

Mr. Drake

we say "thank you" for doing your jobs so well.

Policy Originators Convene

Lieutenant General J. C. Fegan, Jr.

About once each month DeDe Morris left her fifth period class to perform one of her duties as SCA President: to attend the school board meetings as a non-voting member. She sat with the Superintendent, Mr. Homer M. Bryant, and School Board Chairman, Colonel John J. Unterkofler, along with other board members as policies and problems related to the school system were discussed.

This year budget matters had to be tackled, Quantico Education Association representatives discussed matters related to the curriculum and the calendar, and of course, there were the usual routine matters to be considered. The chief objective of this body is to help execute the system's philosophy — to help the individual achieve his best in a healthy, stimulating, and challenging educational environment.

School Board members listen as Mr. Bryant presents a report.

Colonel Unterkofler and Mr. Bryant confer about school business.

A Duo of Optimistic Diligence

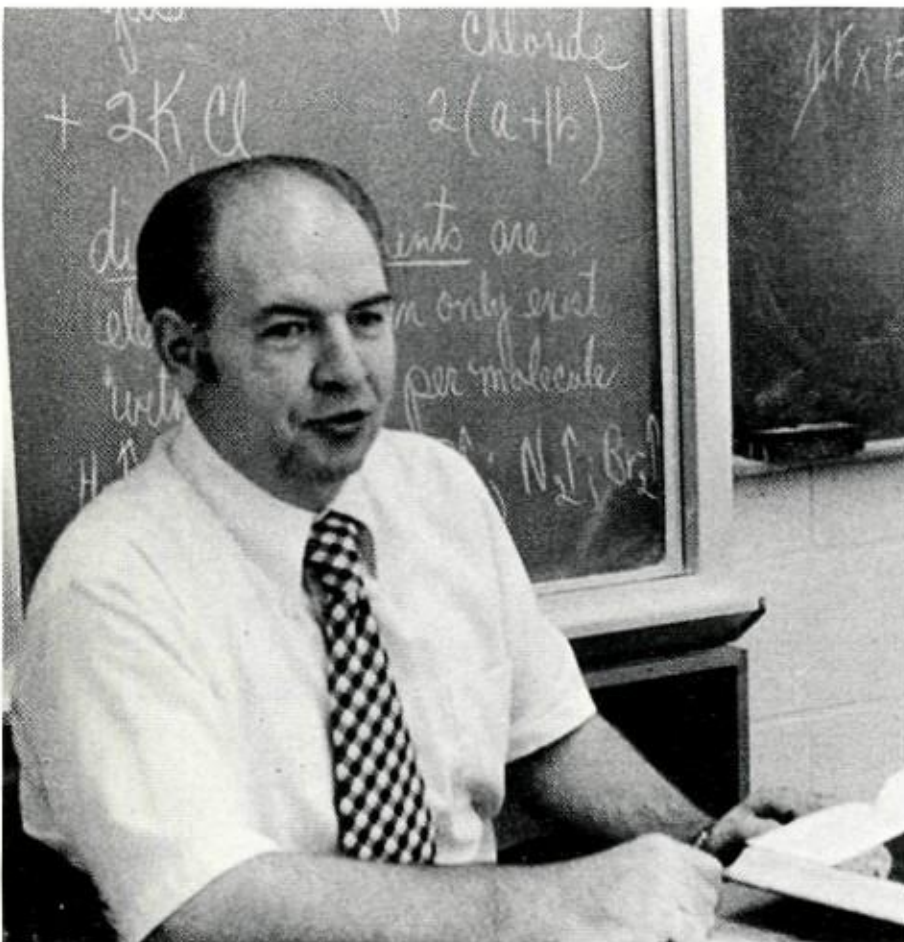

Principal

William L. Marshall

Late buses, tardy students, ruffled parents, phone calls, transcripts, attendance cards, bells off schedule, and unruly students — that is one side of office life, but here's another: a friendly hello from a secretary, a principal congratulating a student for some achievement, an unusual morning announcement, animated chatter, and a sigh of success at the lost-and-found drawer. The main office has its days, but usually optimism prevails.

Actually, both are big in stature!

Advanced reference work is one area stressed in the Media Center, but browsing and reading periodicals in the morning, looking for a good book, and watching taped shows are other noticeable activities. The more you enter these doors, the better!

An Aesthetic Awakening

As long as Miss "S" is in her niche, the artistic geniuses of the past will remain alive while new Michelangelos and Picassos will be inspired. The art show at the year's end attests to the fact that quality reigns here. This year assemblages, etchings and papier-maché animals helped us remember many nostalgic scenes reflective of American life.

Students enjoy a relaxed moment in art.

Business Classes Inflated With Involvement

Juliet Steger

Upon entering 101, what's the first thing you see? A typewriter? Of course, but so much more than typing occurs in that room. The lady who presides over its activities has a way of getting her students involved in discussing "almost anything" and students love it, but she keeps their noses to the grindstone in the process. Just ask her about her three R's: Respect, Responsibility, and Reasoning. Such is the motto of her classes!

If you look over Sherri Dow's shoulder, you'll notice she is busy doing a shorthand assignment.

Bobby Green seems to be taking typing seriously.

Darlene Dady continues to work, but Toni Brown knows when to stop.

Basics, Books, and Beowulf

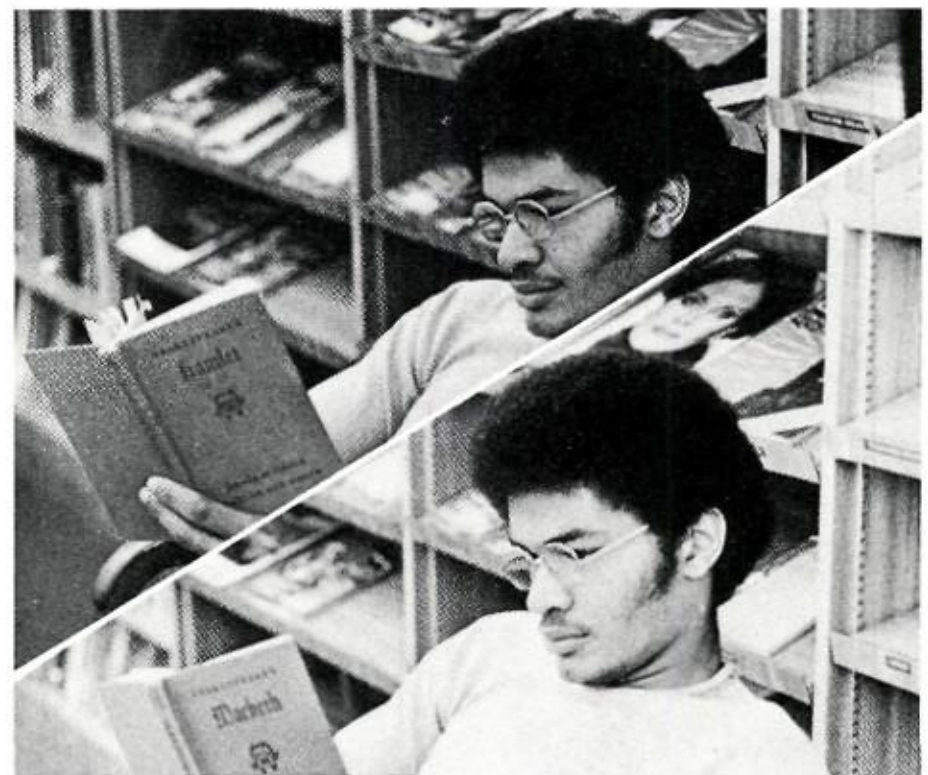

Myrtle J. Richardson

In Grade Seven English means the basics — nouns and verbs; in Grade Eight, try vocabulary and some Western folktales! By Grade Nine, "Romeo and Juliet" and "Antigone" enter the cavalcade of literary greats who are joined in Grade Ten by "Julius Caesar" and "The Lottery" gang. Then along comes "Huckleberry Finn" and the cast of "Inherit The Wind" only to be highlighted by "Hamlet," "Macbeth," and "Beowulf" in Grade Twelve. Just a vignette of English . . . "Only this and nothing more," but quoth the Raven, "Nevermore"?

A pair of patriots!

Lacy Twining lays down her flute to read the "Bicentennial Minutes."

History: "The Way We Were and Are"

"America" is celebrated every year in the History Department, but bicentennial projects helped commemorate this special year. While seventh graders did projects on life in early America, eighth graders did mobiles on the Revolutionary period. The "Bicentennial Minutes" informed students via the P.A. system about famous events. Then a Pioneer Day and a Fifties Day brought students closer to 1976. Seniors filled out sample income tax forms and studied Supreme Court cases, and some ninth grade World Geography pupils attempted "detente" when they brought in dishes from foreign countries.

Sharks, Soil, and Sulfuric Acid

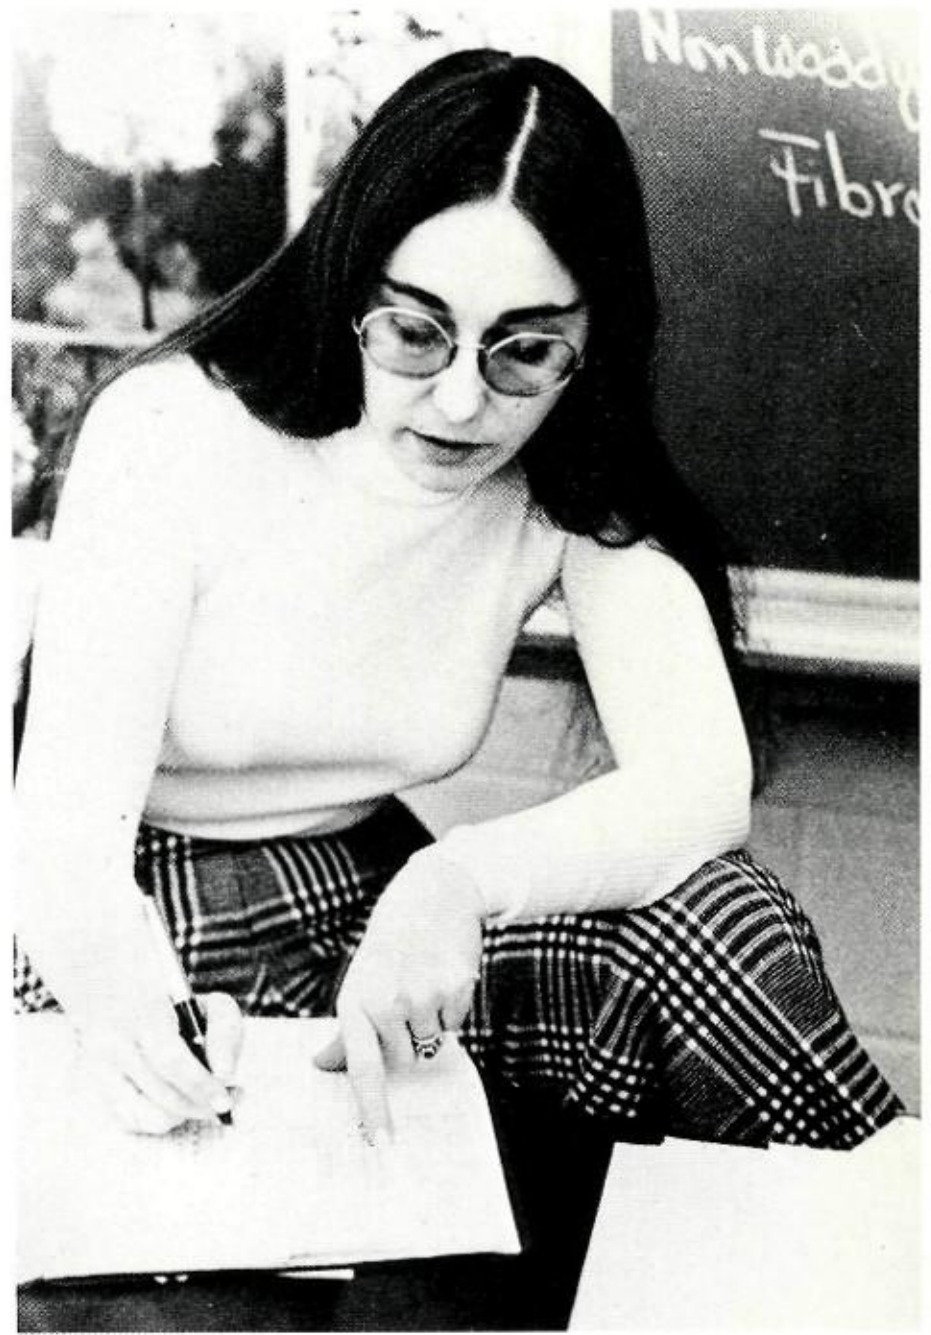

While movie fans flocked to area theatres to see "Jaws" starring that mechanical chordate called "Bruce," Quantico had its own variety of a specimen known as Squalus acanthias. The mad scientists pursued it in an academic sense, though, in their study of anatomy. Meanwhile, neighbors down the hall analyzed soil samples, studied the nature of diseases, and on occasion the pungent smell of sulfuric acid jolted everybody's olfactory sense! Such was life in the science wing.

Foreign Languages: Translations and Travelogues

"Do You know the way to . . . San Jose . . . Gay Pareé . . . Old Madrid . . . Eternal Rome?" If not, you must frequent a foreign language class; here you will learn not only a language but a new approach to life via the customs of foreign cultures. You may be given a chance to visit the Pan American Union and the National Gallery of Art to view the works of Goya and Velásquez. Make your reservations early for a vicarious flight into a world of endless possibilities.

He manages to keep up with his regular duties as well as to find time to take aspiring musicians to Fredericksburg. Both work with the elementary school band and orchestra groups, too. They keep a song in their hearts!

A student jumps higher and higher on a trampoline, over a "horse," and into the sawdust; relays are timed, laps are run, and goals are made. A volleyball, a hockey ball, a baseball, a softball, and a football jockey for position during the year. A whistle blows and order is called! Then it's on to health education or to Driver's Ed. A long period may bring a trip to the skating rink. A ten-minute bell sounds and it's off to showers, chatter, and a wait at the door before the signal to head for the next class!

Reading at Quantico involves more than just books! The world that is found in books is explored, too. That's why a field trip to see "Tom Sawyer" or the Library of Congress or a speaker like Mrs. Eileen Meade from "Potomac News" become part of reading instruction. Then, Scrabble, crossword puzzles, pleasure reading, and interaction days are remembered too! The end product of such activities leads to increased comprehension, rate, and vocabulary growth.

Such activities are directed by a dedicated home economist known as Bacher, Incorporated!

Industrial Arts: Metal, Wood, and Ink

BUZZ — CLANK — THUMP! Only the sounds of Industrial Arts! A saw cuts a piece of wood; a metal project is pursued; a hammer whips two boards together, but wait, there's more. An adroit hand manipulates a pen across a drawing board creating an oblique or isometric drawing and maybe even a detailed inked one! Sawdust may infiltrate the air on occasion, but no harm results. Such is the atmosphere in "shop."

Resting a moment: Mr. Walter Thomas, Mr. Richard Morgan, Mr. Linwood Sullivan, Mr. Kenneth Thompson, and Mr. Norman Burnett. Thanks for keeping an eye out for a certain yearbook sponsor this year!

First the menu is announced in the morning; a count is taken and the "chefs" begin their work over hot stoves. Will it be pizza or Sloppy Joes on a Bun? A bell rings, a line forms, and a few "butters" are bounced to the back of the line. A clean-up crew enters to guard the hall and tidy up a bit. Then enter the cast of custodians who stay quite late to make the building nicer for the next day. Did anyone notice?

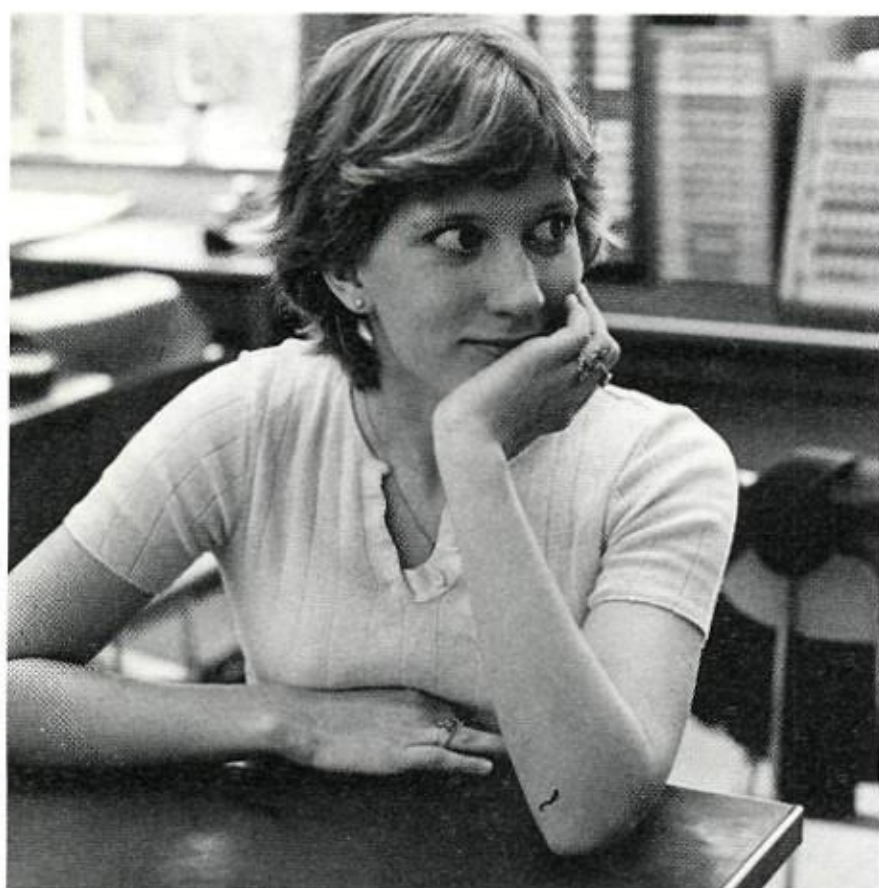

There's always a job to do. Right, Mr. "K"?

Mr. Burnett and Mr. Sullivan are caught off guard.

Try to define "Eighth Grade," and it's hard, isn't it? We are a convivial bunch ever ready to go on a field trip to see "Tom Sawyer," flexible enough to venture back into time to experience pioneer life, aggressive enough to sell Boondockers and cakes and cookies at bake sales, imaginative enough to plan a dance, brassy enough to give our teachers fits at times, and likeable enough to stand out as a united class loyal to Quantico and its traditions. Pioneer Day: Yipee Ah Ya

Boys whittling knives, guns, and rifles, girls making aprons and long dresses, teachers trying to make things run smoothly — such was the scene prior to Pioneer Day staged by Miss Cannon's and Mrs. Craig's classes. English classes studied such folklore characters as Pecos Bill and Paul Bunyan while history classes discussed the westward movement, Indian tribes, and the role of the cowboy in American history.

Mrs. Craig and Miss Cannon seem undaunted by Indian uprisings or buffalo stampedes as they enjoy chow.

Tom Cameron stands over a "corpse." Was that how the West was won?

Cheryl Desko and Gina Irving help Tanya Storms prepare her skirt for Pioneer Day.

Matt Zander sacks out for a bite. Soon it will be back to chopping and planting. Meanwhile Andy Buesing gets a serving of pork and beans from pioneer ladies on the range, Hope Darling and Kelly Furman.

Ninth grade: the beginning of something called senior high school, but at Quantico, it is like "middle age" — we cannot be too juvenile nor are we eligible to display a "senior slump" attitude. We are just good at being ourselves . . . in world geography, in a physical science lab . . . during a reading of "Romeo and Juliet" . . . or in the home economics kitchen. We have a knack for being late to class . . . rushing to lunch . . . bantering with teachers . . . carousing at games . . . pretending to practice our musical instruments . . . doing the "bump" at school dances. We have proven ourselves to be rather enthusiastic "middle agers" guided by Mr. Blatt, Mr. Drake, Mrs. Lortz, Mrs. Price, and Mrs. Richardson.

Christmas seems to be the time for us sophomores to show our spirit, for it is then that we stage our traditional dance. Somehow we are able to break away long enough from making speeches in English, performing skits in history, dissecting pigs in biology, and analyzing proofs in geometry to raise the necessary funds to carry out this project. Luckily, we have three sponsors, Mr. Burton, Miss Comer, and Miss Hardin, to keep us in line and to give us some assistance.

Enthusiasm — The Watchword of '77

It all started one hot August day when over seventy juniors meandered into school unaware of what lay ahead in the months to come. The year started off with a trip to see "The Fantasticks." Before long it was time to order class rings and to sign up for those awesome PSAT's. Soon money needed for the prom was earned through concessions and candy sales. There was even time to challenge the seniors to a VW stuffing contest. By May, thanks to the guidance of Mr. Carlson, Mrs. Barnes, and Mrs. Wuthrich, the final goal — the prom — was realized.

Mr. Carlson, a class sponsor, mesmerizes attentive juniors who listen to plans for money-making projects.

HOMECOMING

"'Sweet Land of Liberty' America is called — the Western star that lured colonists across uncharted seas into fertile yet primitive lands," narrated Karl Huf at the "Stars and Stripes Forever" show at Homecoming in October, 1975.

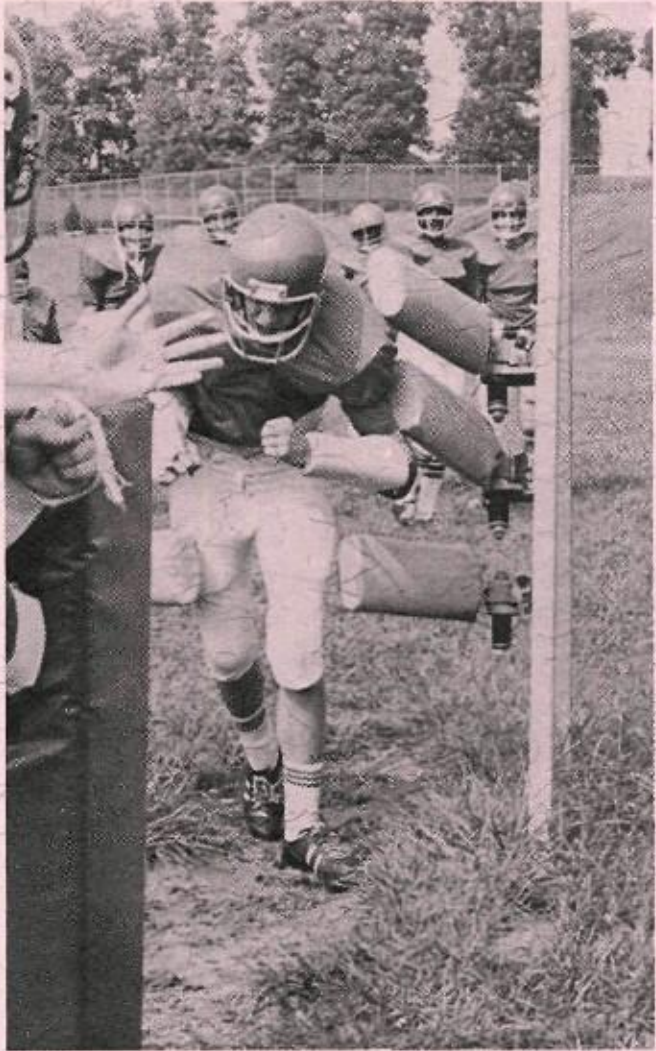

Liberty pats George Washington (Jack Davis) on the back and pushes him into his roles as Commander of the Continental Army and later President.

Patrick Henry (Matt Daniels) represents independent spirit while Benjamin Franklin (Paul Fleming) symbolizes curiosity. George Washington (Jack Davis) stands for leadership and Connie Sheehan, the religious spirit of Anne Hutchinson.

OCTOBER 10, 1975

Jeanne Hoppmeyer portrays the spirit of Liberty that is planted on American soil. Through an interpretive dance, she pushed American history from 1607 to 1776.

America's three great documents, the Declaration of Independence, the U.S. Constitution, and the Bill of Rights, prove the power of the pen. Liberty holds the symbolic parchment while George Mason (David Brown), Thomas Jefferson (John Dane), and James Madison (Skip Morris) sign it. Sam Adams (Kris Furstenberg) and the QHS band stand attentively.

In 1775 men's souls had been tried severely, but Connie Sheehan's moving "God Bless America" offered hope to the colonists.

The Ingebretsen brothers gather 'round the Christmas tree before the concert.

Junior-Senior Prom — 1975

Kathy Trumble and Teresa Scozzari suggested the theme; Kathy supplied the sketches which won the prize offered by the Junior sponsors Miss Vaughan, Miss Brown, and Mr. Livingston. All that was left was hard work: painting scenery, silk-screening programs, planning flower arrangements, and finding a band. Besides the names of Trumble and Scozzari, those of Carl Zander, Doug Boyd, Liz Scott, Kathy Hogan, and Owen Hines should come to mind. Not to be forgotten too were the lovely flower baskets done by Mrs. Dane and the pages' aprons made by Mrs. Ingebretsen. There will never be another evening like May 17, 1975!

The scenery of verdant landscapes and a Moorish castle towered over dancers and spectators.

"The Prophets" from Fredericksburg provided the music.

Pages Chris Herman and Val Knapp sample some of the pizza hors d'oeuvres.

Tapping Ceremony Honors Scholars

NHS President Liz Scott leads fellow members into the gym for tapping ceremony.

If you attended the fall induction, you probably recall the speech made by Dr. Laura V. Sumner, Professor and Chairman of the Department of Classics at Mary Washington College. She is the fascinating lady who held the coin before us. One side was engraved, the other side, blank. She challenged us to let our lives print something worthwhile on its back.

NHS members aren't just seen busy on assembly days. They are the school's official ushers at many night functions. Members also compete for a scholarship given each year by their own group.

Jeanne Hoppmeyer is stunned, but her friends seem to know what is happening!

Liz Edwards taps DeDe Morris; surrounding friends Kathy Hogan and Jimmy Knapp seem delighted, too!

Paul Fleming escorts his brother Scott to the stage for the induction ceremony.

Peggie Mossler, President of National Junior Honor Society, inducts new members at the fall tapping ceremony.

On service projects, the National Junior Honor Society works with the Business Club. At Thanksgiving, fruit juices and paper towels were collected for the Muriel Humphrey School in Woodbridge. At Christmas, clothing, books, and toys were brought in for Head Start children in Stafford County.

Speakers are another feature of these two groups. NJHS had Capt. Arnold Fields speak on the quality of leadership at the fall induction service. The Business Club especially enjoyed M/Sgt. Henry Kunkel and Mr. Bingham who spoke on ecology.

A Dedicated Group of Photographers

Darrell Rosanelli and Mike Walsh spent many afternoons in the darkroom developing negatives for the Boondocker.

Often a picture has to be printed several times before the necessary contrasts prevail.

Photographers Jane Twining and Lisa Waugaman were seldom seen during the 1975-76 school year without a camera.

Over the Christmas holidays and at semester break, Morse Olsen and Rudy Woltner printed over a hundred pictures for the Boondocker at the base photography lab.

"Acropolis 7844" and Jim Klinger! Those vibrations still linger in the memories of assembly-goers that November day in '75. Then the band's part in "The Stars and Stripes Forever" at Homecoming along with its selections from "Godspell" at the Winter Concert were among the highlights of the year. How does Mr. Whitehead do it with a Dana (Boing-Boing) Scaglione, a Jim (Bom-Boom) Klinger, a Kerry (Potsy) Prewitt, a Denise (Shut-up) Palmer, and a Chris (Hot-lips) Hale always ready with a quip?

Take it away, Jim Klinger!

Jim Quirk is ready for the kill.

Dana Scaglione seems unaware of Quirk's madness.

Mr. Whitehead seems oblivious to the action overhead.

Okay gang, let's break it up and get to work.

Denise Palmer checks to see what's happening in the back. It doesn't seem to be very musical, that's for sure.

This year the Orchestra dedicated its fall "Pop" Concert to the late Leroy Anderson. Among the most enjoyable of his pieces played were "Plink, Plank, Plunk" and "The Syncopated Clock." Then, who could forget David Ingebretsen's "Maple Leaf Rag" solo? Two other solos were played by Peggie Mossler and Mrs. Cathy Holme — "Chopin's Favorites." The Christmas Concert presented music that was popular during the sixteenth century. As always, "Showtime '76," the orchestra's major production, highlighted the year.

Qimbo Supports Music

Qimbo, a club organized by parents who have children in orchestra, raises money through coffee sales during night school and a rummage sale. The money is used to buy supplies such as reeds, strings, music, and other items essential to any orchestra. Last year the Qimbo Club bought a musical typewriter so music would no longer have to be written by hand.

Dressed in long beige print dresses, the girls in the High School Chorus entertained us with excerpts from "Funny Girl" and went on to sing for the local Kawanis and Lions' Clubs. Then there was Connie Sheehan's "Hosanna" from "Jesus Christ Superstar" and her poignant "God Bless America" at the homecoming ceremonies.

The Folk Chorus members were dressed in fine style, too, but we remember most their songs. At Christmas they sang a song composed by Quantico's own Miss Jeanette Comer entitled "Hear The Christmas Songs."

It's Academic

David Shute and fellow team members James O'Rourke and Mike Walsh are ecstatic over Quantico's first win. Standing in back are host, Mr. Mac McGarry, Ms. Berthe Schuchat, and Mrs. Becky Butler.

What Do "Market" and "Yard" Have in Common?

After many hours of drilling with questions from every imaginable field, the Quantico team was ready to meet Osbourn Park and Suitland High Schools. That first round proved victorious and a cash prize was won. The next show put Quantico against Montgomery Blair and Duval High Schools. Quantico came in second then. The whole experience was intellectually challenging. It was a good year!

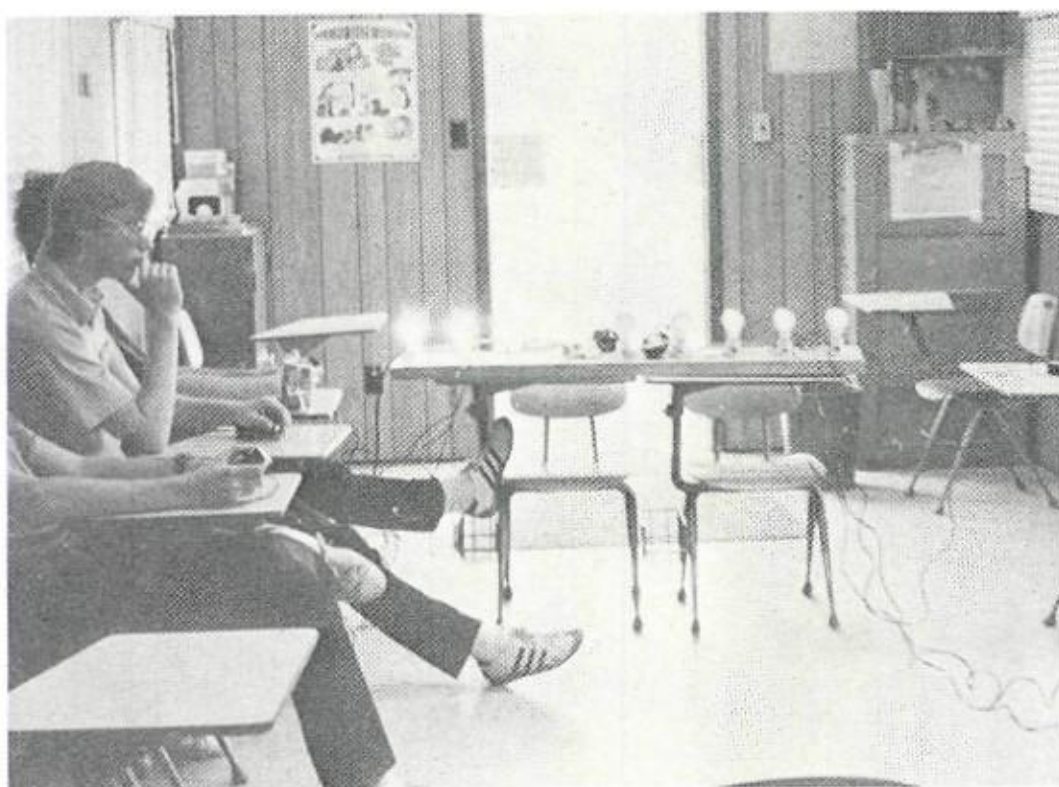

Now you've had time to answer the question above which David Shute tackled on the first show. "Stock" is the winning response!

Front: Mike Walsh, Dave Shute, James O'Rourke; Back: Mrs. Butler (sponsor), Paul Fleming, Karl Huf, Derek Brown, Kris Furstenberg, Kathy Trumble, Lisa McMahon, Liz Scott, Chris Wise.

Mrs. Butler directed many a night training session in the library.

Remember, too, those sessions in the trailer with the lightbulbs?

Doug Boyd and Paul Fleming seem amused while Mike Walsh (center) seems to ponder the next question.

Poor Chris Hyskell should be elated that Quantico won the first It's Academic encounter, but for reasons unknown, Terri Pistelli and Nancy Shute come to her rescue! A busload from the school cheered the team of scholars.

“Here Come The Judge — Freeze!”

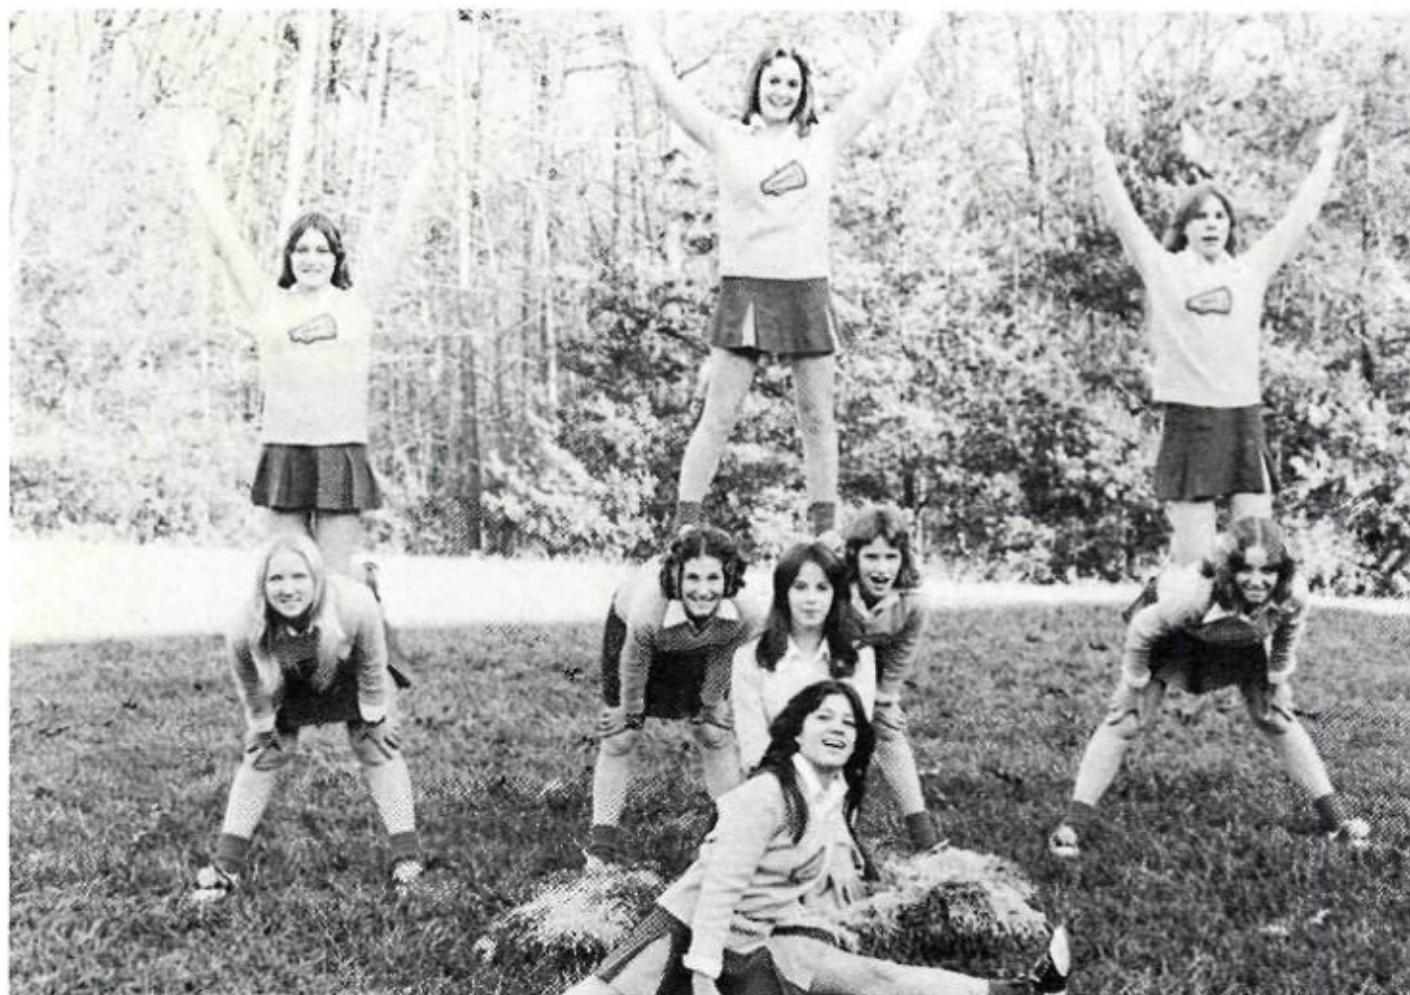

Fans are not likely to forget this squad! Remember that assembly when Judges Chace and Shute tried the case of “Warriors vs. Falcons”? Those nips of “cough syrup” wouldn’t hold up in a real court of law! Then, that “Devils” cheer with the heavy stomping and that “Freeze” cheer about Old Lady Lucy really got the crowds involved. By the way, it can now be revealed that those new outfits were really tennis dresses. It was Captain Kim Chace along with her Co-Captain Nancy Shute who led the squad in a very successful year.

Captain Kim Chace does her thing!

Boogaloo With The JV Cheerleaders

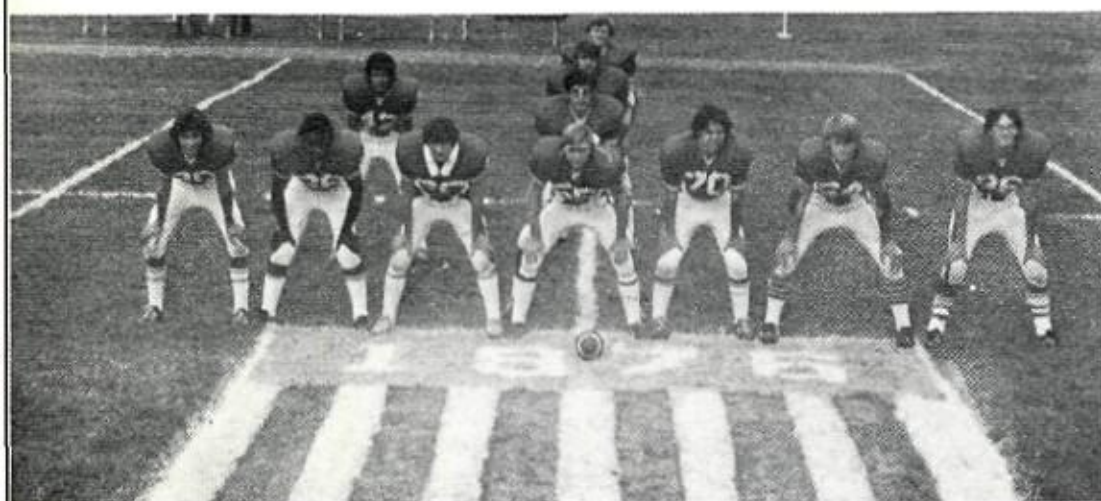

The JV cheerleaders led by Bev Ashburn and assistant Christy Lawbaugh boogalooed their way into the crowds at athletic events crying "Whatcha gonna yell for" and when not cheering, they were famous for their mounts. How often can you remember Cathy and Adrienne forgetting which way to go and Lisa's and Debbie's lead-offs on the rebound and sink-it chants? The new outfits designed by the girls added ever present color to the gym on game days.

JV cheerleaders givin' it all they've got!

Quantico's big "O"!

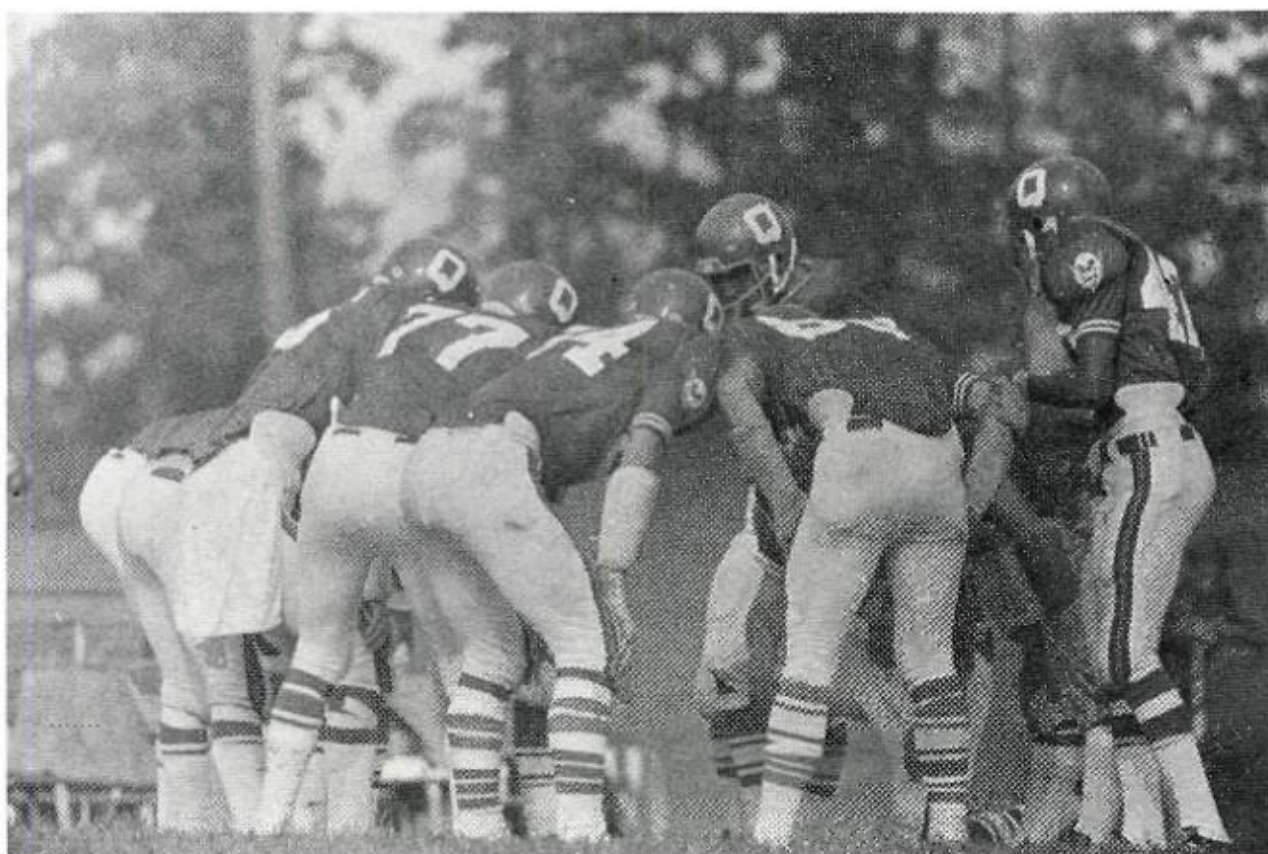

The defense is ready for anything!

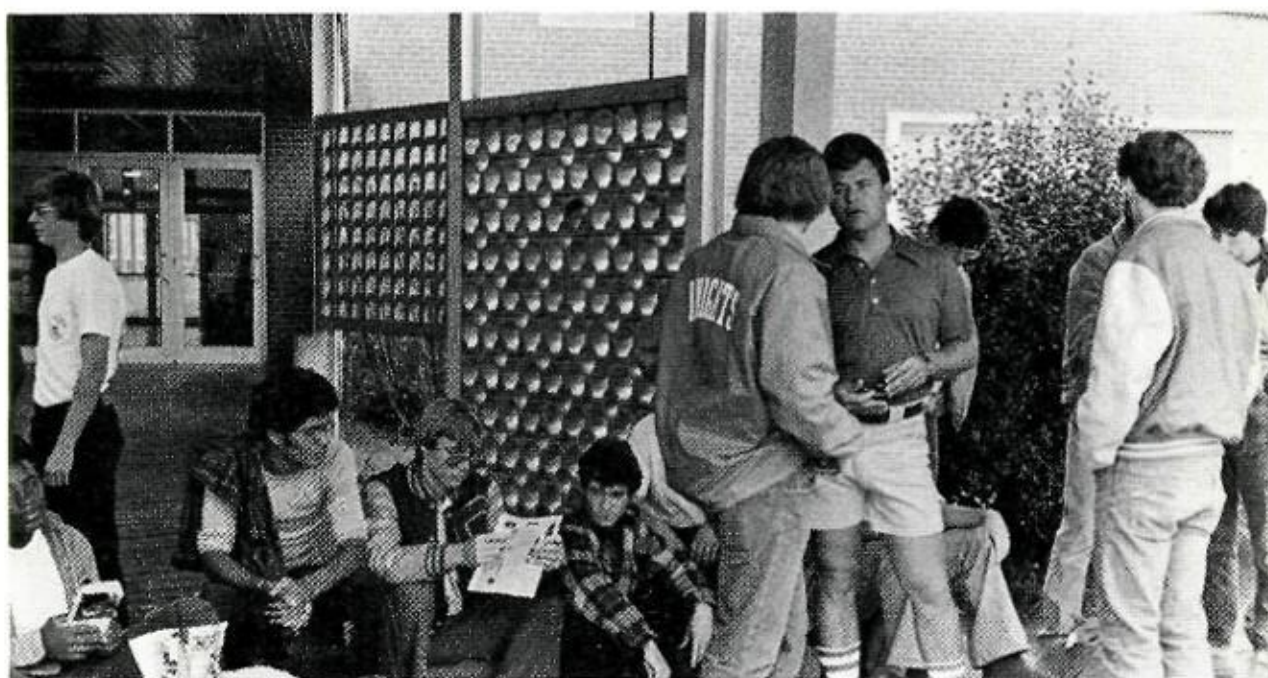

"Football is not a contact sport; it is a collision sport." The 1975 Devil Warriors held this to be all too true. Punishing opponents, the Warriors not only faced the other teams, but many times rain, wind, bitter cold, and other outside forces had to be confronted. Football disproves the law of evolution; the fittest do not always survive.

Season Ends With A 3-3-2 Record

The team huddles up, listening for instructions on the next play. Suddenly, Mike Hamilton utters the immortal words: "Stron' Right, Fo-Fo Pow'r On Set!"

Above, players psych themselves up for the Pallotti game while Coach Stevens gives last minute instructions to the statistician.

Devil Warriors hit the field at the onset of the homecoming game.

At left, Coaches Stevens, Alvey, and Leonard stand with Wayne Ford. A football player never forgets the men who made the team what it is — the men who encourage, support, and urge the team to victory, yet uphold it in defeat, remembering the motto: "It's only a game."

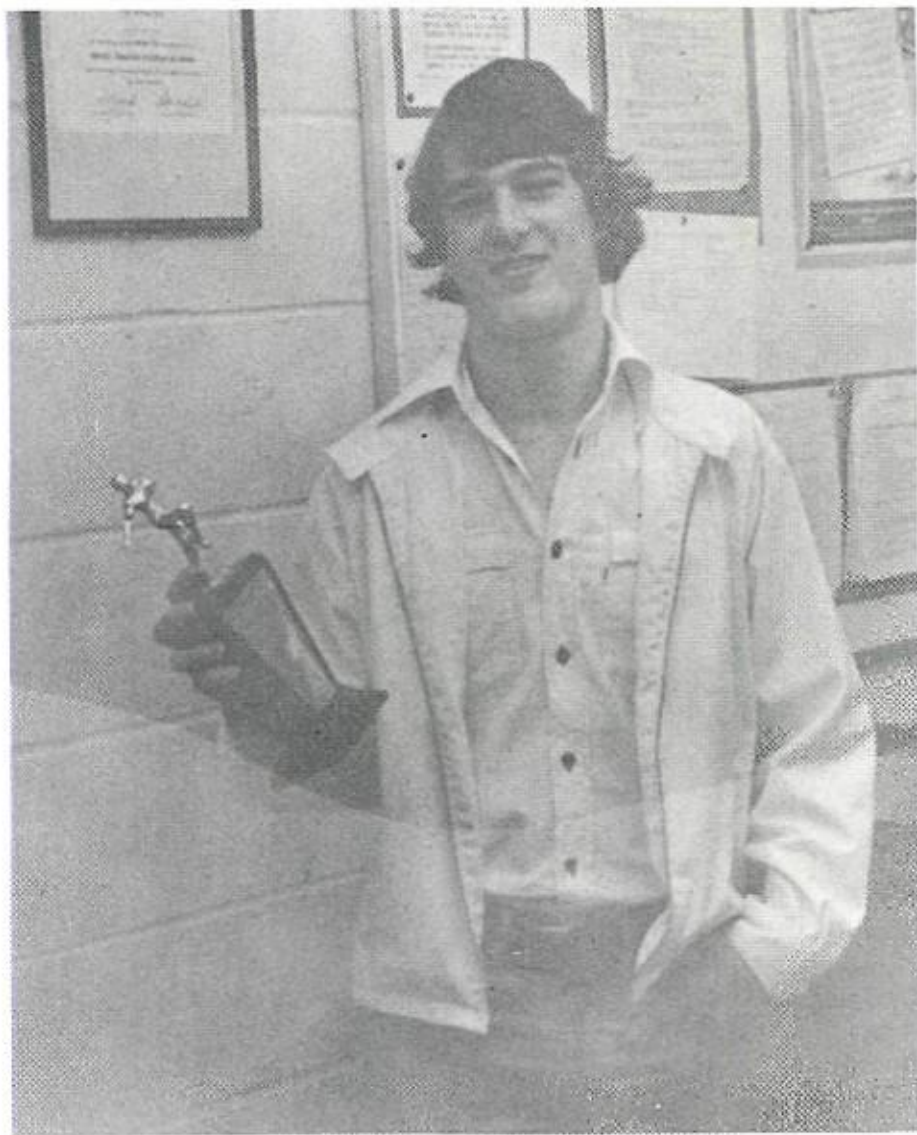

The Seniors

The team's senior players were Mike Walsh, Mike Hamilton, Carl Zander, Jimmy Wells, Wayne Ford, Doug Parsons, Bill Seiler, and Darcy Bass. We yield the field to next year's team!

Wayne punts one away as the Devil Warriors scamper downfield to a 34-6 victory over Flint Hill.

Ford, Parsons, and Flannigan Honored

Year Terminates With An 8-1 Record

Sharon Boddy concentrates hard as she goes for a one-pointer. She knows if she doesn't make it she will have a beloved "suicide" to run. That was incentive for most of the girls.

"So you don't think I can do it?" says senior Sharon Boddy before a foul shot.

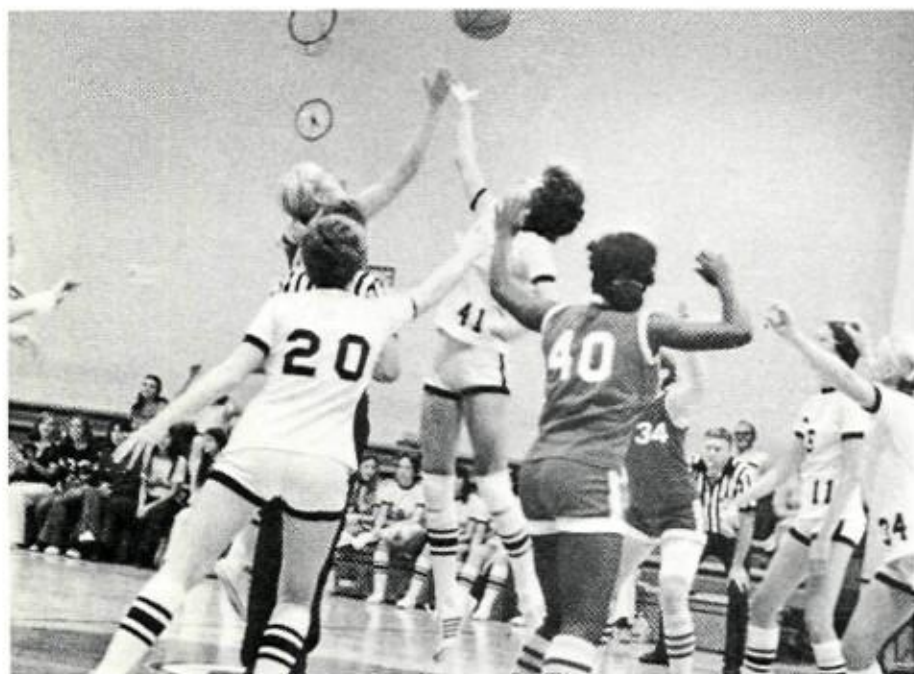

"If you ask me Liz, your uniform looks fine on you," says Valerie Lutz during warm-ups as Kathy Hogan (in background) ponders on whether or not to pick up the basketball.

Edwards Named Most Outstanding Player

Liz Edwards, a junior, was named the Most Outstanding Player for the 1975 season. She was the high scorer with a 16.6 point average per game, ending nine games with 150 points. She was followed closely by Kathy Hogan who ended with 91 points for the season. Liz along with Kathy were co-captains and the team's morale leaders on and off the court.

Junior Liz Edwards displays trophy she received for being named Most Outstanding Player for the 1975 season.

Pia Scaglione, Sharon Boddy, and Kathy Hogan position themselves around the center circle to receive the tip.

To look at them, this trio of returning players, Liz Edwards, Kathy Hogan, and Sharon Boddy, seems like three normal girls, but to know them is to know three definitely insane basketball players.

“Looking Back . . .”

Although the girls' team was young and in some cases inexperienced, it was a most successful season, sporting an 8-1 record. Seniors Kathy Hogan and Sharon Boddy along with junior Liz Edwards were the only returning players. According to Coach Linda Hurff, the Devil Warriors' offensive leaders were Liz Edwards, Kathy Hogan, Kelly Walker, and Sharon Boddy. She named Liz Edwards, Kathy Hogan, and Sharon Boddy again, but this time as defensive standouts along with Pia Scaglione. Coach Hurff also mentioned that Lisa Fallon and Kelly Walker were two promising newcomers.

If you ever passed by the gym at mid-winter around 6:00 p.m., you may have heard music like "Ain't She Sweet" and "Rocky Mountain High." If you bothered to look in, you would have seen Quantico's gymnastic team at work under the direction of Mrs. Moore. Cartwheels, splits, handstands, the horse, and parallel bars had to be mastered before those meets with other schools.

“Come Saturday Morning”

Seniors take a break from concessions to watch some football.

Mrs. Cameron and Mr. Orr worked behind the scenes to help make concessions a worthwhile project.

Lisa McMahon, Kim Chace, and Nancy Shute hard at work!

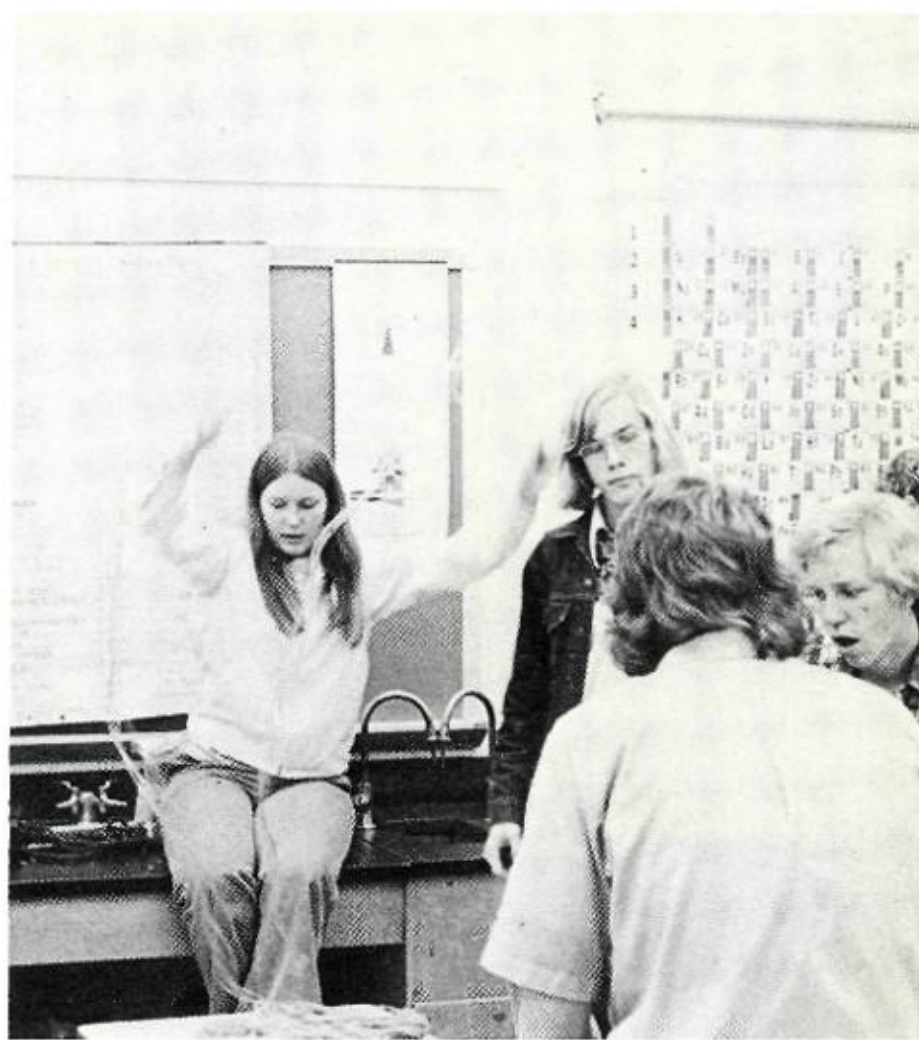

Kathy Hogan and Mr. Craig get Christmas greenery bills straight.

Remember when Orr and Craig both had bandaged fists? Wonder if anyone reported them to Mr. Kalasky or to “Doc Savage”?

Seniors work on matchbook favors for the bazaar in one of the night workshops.

Rope was prepared for hanging baskets by Kim Pritchard, Jim Peeden, and John Dane

The Bazaar

Being a senior at Quantico means government and income taxes and Wordsworth, Shelley, and Keats. It means homeroom in the cafeteria and a few extra minutes to get to lunch. It means a senior trip! That trip comes only after some hard work at a magazine sale, Saturday morning concessions at Butler Stadium, a Christmas greenery sale, a bazaar, and brunches and spaghetti dinners.

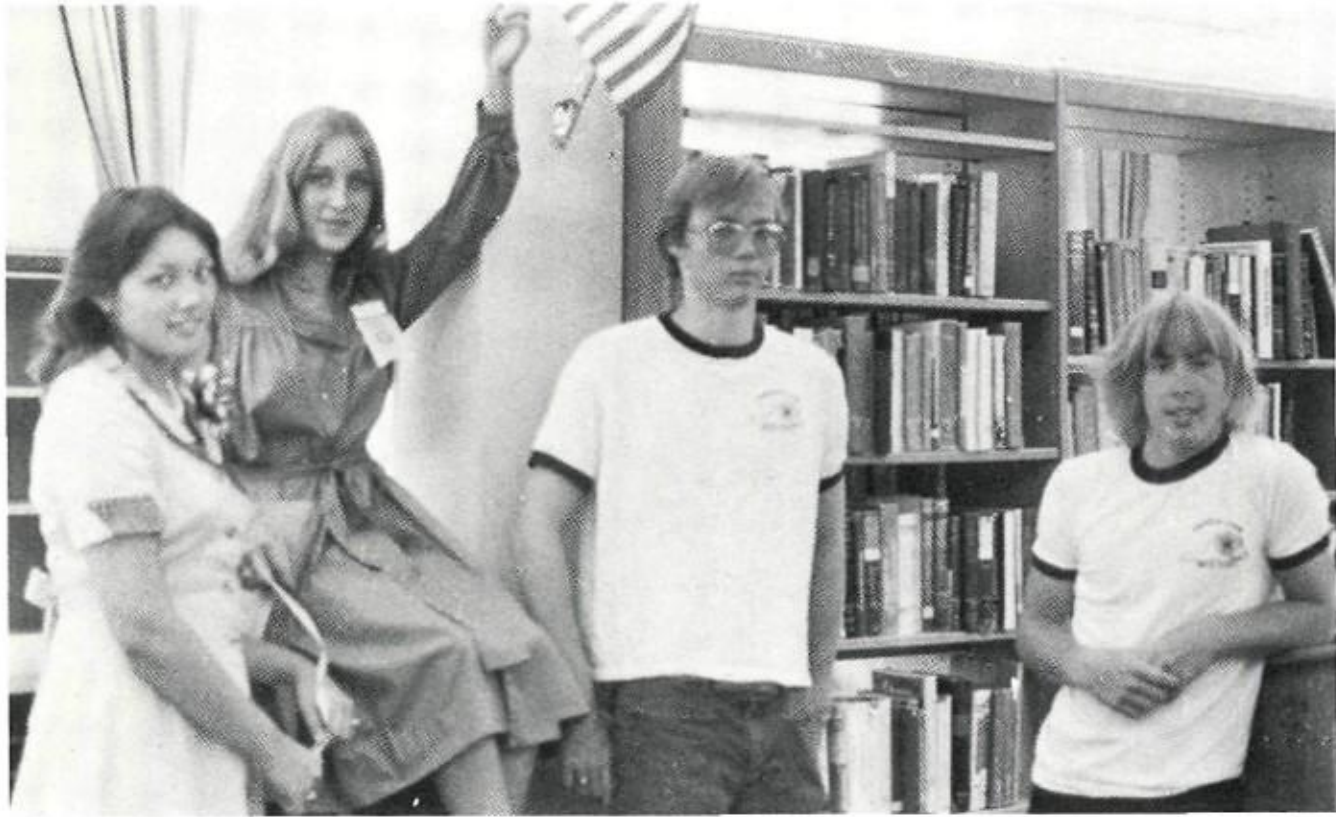

Carl Zander and Kathy Hogan try to make a sale with Jimmy Knapp, a QHS alumnus.

Kathy Trumble and John Dane clerk at the bazaar!

Seniors Win Top Honors

Linda Ames and Liz Scott represented QHS at Girls' State held at Longwood College, while Mike Walsh and Chris Knapp attended Boys' State at Lynchburg College. These activities introduce rising seniors to the workings of Virginia state government.

Linda Ames (center) is congratulated by Mr. Marshall and Miss Brown for winning the National Council of Teachers of English Writing Contest. She is one of many national winners chosen from thousands of entries.

Linda Hartman received commendation from the National Merit Scholarship program.

Paul Fleming chats with Miss Vaughan about his winning essay in the Bicentennial Minute Contest.

Mike Walsh represented QHS in the Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow Contest. A win on the state level could mean a nice scholarship. Bachelor Living can pay off!

SCA — The Soul of Quantico

The Wednesday afternoon meetings are only one small segment of the SCA representatives' duties. Assembly seating, homecoming court, half-time and dance activities, field day, the Battle of the Sexes, Choctaw Indian project, and the spring carnival involve much time and careful planning. Then, don't forget the morning announcements and the school store which come under its auspices. It is only through YOUR help, though, that this organization can serve the needs of Quantico.

John,
We've had a lot of fun this, just like we did last year. You're a real cool guy and I'm glad I know you. Good luck in the future!

John,
I don't know
you very well
but you're really nice guy. Hope we're in class together again next year. So take care, stay out of trouble and have a nice summer.

Love ya

John,
you're one ~~of~~ crazy but cool guy. I've enjoyed having you in my
math class. (helping me)
I really hate math. I guess if I would have paid a little more attention than talking I could have did better. Stay cool you'll go far.

Love ya!
